

Horizons is our family's cause, and we hope it will become yours.

We've watched it grow from a single school to a national network of award-winning programs. For the past two decades, we've donated our time and money to Horizons because we believe the achievement gap is unacceptable, and we know Horizons makes a dramatic difference.

Recognition this year by The Wallace Foundation and the National Summer Learning Association, along with educational leaders like Joel Klein and Michelle Rhee, illustrates what we already know – the unique Horizons model, which blends academics with enrichment and swimming, is magic in its impact on children.

Success like this is what national education reform is all about: identifying programs that work and replicating them around the country. There are 23 Horizons programs today. We need more. We've seen Horizons change lives- and it has changed our lives along the way. Please join us in supporting this special program.

Jane and Brian Williams

